NOT YET VISIBLE.

him by his secretary, who occupied a seat close at hand, he read a large number of letters and telegrams sent to him from all over the south and west commending him for the fight which he was making for free coinage. At last he came to what he said would be very interesting matter, and he said he was very sorry there were six more Senators to hear it. That was a cue for a roll call, and Mr. Allen (Pop.) of Nebraska acted upon it and suggested the absence of a quorum. This call lasted 2½ hours and resulted in gathering in fifty-four Senators, and then Mr. Stewart read the interesting paper, and went on with his speech. After declaring that seventy millions of people's pleading for justice could not be intimidated, he stopped suddenly and said he would yield to his colleague (Mr. Jones) and would finish his speech afterwards.

Mr. Jones (Rep.) of Nevada resumed the speech begun by him some weeks ago by a preliminary statement that the speeches that were being made by the opponents of the bill were not addressed to the hope of changing any vote in the Senate, but because they believed in the truth of their cause and were determined to present before the people of the United States the basic reasons which were at the foundation of the question. Alluding to what he called "the abuse and objurgations" by the newspapers upon the Senators opposing the repeal bill, Mr. Jones said:

"We defy them all. We laugh at them. I know that I am performing a great duty in this body, a duty to my country and nothing that the newspapers can say will induce me to utter one word or to retreat one step."

Mr. Jones attributed the deflation of monetary system to the fact that money men in Great Britain and the United States are unable to obtain employment, and said: "The skeleton in the closet of every nation is the idle men. Work is the dynamo of civilization. The nation's policy which keeps men at work is the policy which makes men prosperous and happy. With regular and uninterrupted occupation there would be fewer lunatics, fewer insane asylums, fewer jails and fewer crimes. The best measure, any work is the best which keeps men employed." He got off a joke upon Mr. Sherman who joined in the laugh against himself by quoting a speech of his before the Ohio legislature, that "what we all want is the best money and plenty of it." That was a contradiction in terms, Mr. Jones said, because cause money being the best money, Mr. Sherman might just as well as have said "What we all want is scarce money and plenty of it."

Mr. Jones peroration was: "The Roman republic, Mr. President, did not lose its liberties until the Senate had degenerated into a mere instrument for recording the will of the chief magistrate. Macauley has commented upon the ease which all democratic forms, and the names and titles appertaining to a republican form of government were preserved in that commonwealth concurrently with the absorption of all the powers of the State, executive, legislative and judicial in the hands of one man. But that was a long time ago. Times change and men change with them. This is a very different republic from that of Rome, and although history, we are told, sometimes repeats itself, I do not believe that the Senate of the United States is ever to become a subservient Senate. I know that I can speak for the voters of mining States and millions of voters in other States who are in hearty accord with them on all fundamental features of the question now before the Senate when I assert that if the entire monetary policy of the country is to be changed, it is too great a question to be decided without consulting the American people whose new representatives and servants we are. And, if perchance, there be a majority of Senators here favorable to the passage of this measure and able to secure a vote upon it, without reference to the fatal effect it is absolutely certain to have not only all the people of the mining States, but of the producing masses in every State, may I not beg those Senators to pause and reflect that there is no exigency whatever demanding its passage—that absolutely no public condition requires it, and that 'it is excellent to have a giant's strength, but it is tyrannous to use it like a giant.' [Applause in the galleries.]

At the close of Mr. Jones's speech the Senate, at 4:45 on motion of Mr. Faulkner, proceeded to executive business and soon afterwards took a recess until 11 o'clock to-morrow morning.

HOUSE.

The resolution introduced yesterday by Mr. Caminetti (Dem.) of California reopening before the Interior Department the subject of a consolidation of land offices in California so as to facilitate the transaction of business, was called up and passed.

In the morning hour day before yesterday Mr. McRae (Dem.) of Arkansas, Chairman of the Committee on Public Lands, called up the bill reported from that committee to protect the public forest reservations. It having already occupied two hours on the previous day, the point was raised that under the rules it could not again be called up, but must take its place on the calendar. The Speaker postponed his decision on the point of order until this morning, when he ruled that although the rule was vague and uncertain, he was of the opinion that under it a committee could call up any bill as often as it desired. Thereupon Mr. McRae moved that the House go into committee of the whole for the consideration of the bill, and upon a call for the yeas and nays it was found that there was no quorum.

The morning hour having expired without a quorum appearing, the bill went over.

Mr. Oates (Dem.) of Alabama, moved that the House resolve itself into a Committee of the Whole for the consideration of the bankruptcy bill, which was agreed to.

Mr. Lane (Dem.) of Illinois, addressed the House against the bill. He said that in England, a compact community with a great deal of mercantile experience, it costs 10 per cent. of assets to administer the bankruptcy laws, and he predicted that if the pending bill should become a law it would cost at least 25 per cent. of assets to execute it.

Mr. Coombs (Dem.) of New York defended the proposed law. He said that under existing laws there are the wrecks of men who have failed honestly and who are forced to do business in an underhand way, in the names of their wives or other relatives. The passage of the proposed bill would remedy that so that they could resume business openly and honestly. The relations of men are so intimately connected, the debtor may be a creditor, and the creditor may be a debtor, that if you take away the ability of a creditor to collect from his debtor you may take away his ability to discharge his obligations to his creditor. He said that he had been a merchant for thirty-five years and had done business with people of the whole world. In this time he had been a creditor to a very large amount, and he affirmed that his losses by dishonesty had not exceeded one sixteenth of 1 per cent.

Mr. Coombs was followed by Mr. Kilgore (Dem.) of Texas in opposition to the bill. He stated that a bankruptcy law had been in existence in England since the time of Henry VIII, and a bill in the same line was passed in 1883, which was said to be the perfection of bankruptcy law; and yet they did not prevent fraudulent imposition upon the creditor class. He did not believe it necessary to pass any bill of this kind, but he would not have such grave objections against a voluntary bankruptcy law instead of the involuntary law proposed. He objected to that section of the proposed law which makes it illegal to prefer one creditor to another.

Mr. Cox, member of Mr. Oates's committee rose and the House adjourned.

DODGING THE TAX.

The House Committee Considers a Relief Measure for Bankers.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25. The House Committee on Banking and Currency today began its deliberations upon the bill reported from the committee by Representative Bracker of South Carolina in support of his bill to suspend the operation of the law imposing a tax of 10 per cent upon notes issued by banks during the late period of stringency during August to October.

Mr. Brawley said that during that period a number of South Carolina banks had issued clearing house certificates which had circulated throughout the State and done much good. The Collector of internal revenue had been making inquiries as to the amount of such notes issued, with a view, it was understood, of collecting the tax of 10 per cent levied on state bank issues. The government did not provide a currency of sufficient elasticity to meet the emergency. The banks were forced to do something. The action of the Collector of internal revenue had led to the circulation of the certificates.

Mr. Johnson (Rep.) of Indiana asked if Mr. Brawley or any member of the committee had consulted the Commissioner of Internal Revenue in regard to these notes and as to what he would do if not he intended to try to collect a tax on them. None had.

Mr. Brawley thought the action of the collector showed that the Treasury department would endeavor to tax them if it dare.

Mr. Warner (Dem.) of New York said that he was in favor of reporting the bill and removing the doubt. He did not think the government should take advantage of any technicality in the law and tax these notes which had been issued in a case of necessity. The New York banks had issued $40,000,000 worth of them during the period of stringency. He did not think whether or not they were in the character of those issued in South Carolina. The New York bankers and the people he represented did not think the New York notes taxable, and he had not been asked to raise the question in them. He would vote to relieve the South Carolina holders.

After the hearing the committee considered the bill and referred it to a subcommittee to report on Friday and then adjourned to that day.

Distributing the Spoils.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25. It is announced at the Treasury department to-day that Secretary Carlisle feels so confident that the silver fight is needless with the addresses hinged to accumulated department business. There are 900 presidential offices under the Treasury department in which so many changes have been made. There are made up of the state places in collectors of customs, collectors of internal revenue, surveyors of customs and United States marshals.

Actual appointments already to the number of forty-six postmasters, officials, while they have not actually resigned, have notified their willingness to do so when requested, which will swell the number to forty-six. As each appointee will have from 5 to 15 employes under him, the Secretary will exercise great care in making recommendation for appointments.

A New Latin Principle.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25. Representative Cousins (Dem.) of New York to day introduced in the House a resolution directing the Committee on Ways and Means to prepare a tariff bill on a novel principle, the feature of which is a schedule for the protection of labor. "Domestic manufacturers may have their products placed on this favored schedule, whenever they can show that the labor cost, including the use of machinery, is greater here than in other countries. The resolution went to the Committee on Ways and Means after a few sarcastic comments by Republican members.

New York Stock Market.

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—Wall Street close: Money on call has been easy, ranging from 1½ to 2; last loan at 1½, and closing offered at 1½. Prime mercantile paper 6@8 per cent.

The dealings in railway and miscellaneous securities at the stock exchange were larger than for any day since the recent panic. The total sales of stocks were 501,351 shares, while the transactions in bonds aggregated $2,501,000.

The market was buoyant at intervals and the gain in prices in many instances were quite important. Commission houses for the first time in many months were in receipt of out of town orders, and the execution of these stimulated the upward movement. The change in affairs at Washington in the matter of the silver repeal bill, and the increase in railway earnings reported for the third week of October by the St. Paul, Kansas and Texas and Texas Pacific accounts for the revival of outside interest in the stock market. It would be absurd to claim that the advance in prices during the past few days has been entirely due to purchases for outside account, nor would it do to ignore the part buying for the purpose of covering short contracts played in the rise.

Shrewd observers in the Board claimed that the jump in Rock Island to 70 just at the close was the result of efforts to cover an outstanding short contract and it is also alleged that the rise in other Grangers can be traced to the same source. It is said that to-morrow will witness some lively movements in the stocks named, as the shares having been the favorites with the bears for a month or so past. The rise to day in Rock Island was not enjoyed by the fraternity. There were a number of reactions during the session, but each decline only served to bring in fresh buying orders and at the close the market was strong.

A NAVAL SURPRISE.

Admiral Stanton of the Brazilian Squadron Removed.

HE SALUTED A REBEL FLAG.

A Strange Proceeding at Rio de Janeiro—Continuation of the Brazilian Minister Capt. Picking Now in Command of the Fleet.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25. The peremptory removal today of Commodore and Acting Rear Admiral Stanton, stationed at Rio Janeiro, from the command of the South Atlantic Station, was one of the most startling surprises ever experienced in Washington officially, and for a time it has almost obscured the interest in the silver fight. President Cleveland took action after a long conference with the Secretaries of State and the Navy, and when put in possession of all the facts, and also of such further information as Senor Mendonca, the Brazilian minister in Washington, was able to furnish. The official order was tersely made public by Secretary Herbert in the following memorandum:

"The Navy Department learned by authority late to day, by telegram from Rear Admiral Stanton, in command of the United States naval force at Rio Janeiro, that this officer had saluted the flag of Admiral Mello, commanding the insurgent fleet. This salute was unauthorized by any instructions the Admiral has received. It was an unfriendly act toward a friendly power, and the Secretary of the Navy, after consulting with the President and the Secretary of State, issued an order detaching Admiral Stanton from command of this squadron and turning it over to Captain Picking, the senior officer in rank."

In the early morning State and Navy Department officials were incredulous as to the possibility of there being any truth in the report published in the Berlin Nord-Deutsche Zeitung.

Commodore Stanton was not an specially selected for the special duty, because he was considered to possess in a pre-eminent degree the qualifications of courtesy and diplomacy which fitted him to deal with the revolutionary conditions prevailing in the various countries to which his message out would naturally call him.

As one of the highest officers in the service, who himself probably influenced in no small degree Commodore Stanton's appointment, remarked to day:

"This matter is as much of a surprise to me as a slap in the face would be. The relations of the United States to the recognized government of Brazil were such that it was not believed possible that an officer of high rank and experience would go out of his way to give official salute and recognition to a commander of a naval force avowedly in insurrection against the government, and actually engaged in bombarding the national capitol. It was recalled that when the Brazilian monarchy was overthrown, our government, through Minister Adams, was the first to recognize the provisional government established by the republic. Both houses of Congress on the 15th of February, 1890, passed a resolution congratulating the people of Brazil on their just and peaceful assumption of the powers, duties and responsibilities of self government, based upon the free consent of the government. Our friendly interest in the young republic was so powerful a factor in securing its recognition by other powers that just three years ago Brazil sent a squadron consisting of the armored cruiser Aquidaban and other vessels to New York harbor to return the visit of friendship and congratulation made by the United States squadron of evolution in Rio Janeiro in June and July preceding."

When therefore, Secretary Herbert received through Secretary Gresham information that the Brazilian minister reported the story of Admiral Stanton's salute to the rebel flag to be correct, there was a joint consultation of documents and precedents in the diplomatic room, and the conclusion was reached that Commodore Stanton's act was so contrary to the requirements of the case as to call for prompt rebuke and reparation.

With this conclusion in mind, Secretary Herbert at 1 o'clock went over to the White House to consult with the President, who on learning the facts immediately coincided with the views of the Secretary of State and Mr. Herbert, and authorized the issue of an order of suspension.

Captain Henry F. Picking of the Charleston, who relieved Commodore Stanton, is also an officer of experience. He has with him the cruiser Newark. Captain Silas Casey, and in three days from now will be joined by the Detroit. Commander William H. Brenson.

Secretary Herbert was unwilling to speak as to what further action would be taken in Commodore Stanton's case, but it is supposed a court martial will result.

His successor in command of the South Atlantic station, will not be determined upon hastily, but it is thought it will probably be Commodore Richard W. Meade, now on duty as a member of the World's Fair Columbian Exposition.

Affairs at the Cape.

CAPETOWN, Oct. 25.—Despite the official denial made in London yesterday that Sir Henry Loch, Governor of Cape Colony, has been entrusted with sole charge of the operations against the Matabeles, interested ones here and at Johannesburg believe that instructions to that effect have been sent to Sir Henry by the home government. Those interested persons declare that it would be absurd for Governor Loch to interfere with the discretion of Dr. Jameson, administrator of the British South African company, who now is in the field against the natives, when communication with the front may be cut off at any moment.

A BATTLE IMPENDING.

JOHANNESBURG, Oct. 25.—It is expected that an extensive engagement will take place between the white and native forces near the Shanghani river to morrow.

Sir Henry Loch has given his assurance that he only intended to assert his right to control the terms of peace that may be made with the Matabeles, and not to take charge of the field operations. Many rumors of all descriptions are in circulation here regarding the movements of the troops. One rumor has it that Major Leady is dead, but this report as well as the others, lacks confirmation.

"Church Saloons" Condemned.

CHICAGO, Oct. 25.—The "Church Saloon" idea of Dr. Rainford, the New York clergyman, received a significant, although incidental, condemnation this afternoon by the bishops, presbyters and laymen in the last hours of the missionary council of the Protestant Episcopal Church, which has been in session here since Sunday. Bishop Walker of North Dakota, discussing "Missions in Cities" and the various methods employed in christianizing the godless, said: "The so called 'rescue missions,' with their billiard rooms, card table and all that may be very well, but the church saloon, may God forbid!" The speaker's words were echoed from every part of the house with an earnest "Amen."

The deliberations of the council were closed to-night with an address by Bishop W. S. Perry of Iowa on "The Past and Future of the Church in the United States." He arraigned the Roman Catholic church as alien and unAmerican.

Illegal Political Assessments.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 25. In the United States court late this afternoon W. L. Shaw, ex-deputy collector, was found guilty on two counts of indictments charging him with assessing government employes for campaign purposes. The jury was only out twenty minutes. Shaw was held in $2,000 bail, which was furnished by ex-collector Albert Scott. Shaw will be sentenced Saturday. The fault of punishment, as fixed by law, is $500 fine and two years imprisonment. The trial of ex Collector Albert Scott, against whom there are two indictments, will begin to morrow. Colonel Scott is charged with assessing government employes for campaign purposes, and also with certifying to false accounts. The last count will be taken first. The indictment alleges that Colonel Scott signed salary vouchers for several employees, who instead of being at work, were attending a Grand Army encampment. The trial of ex Chief-Deputy-Collector W. E. Jilley, who stands indicted for the same offense of which Shaw was convicted, will come up when the proceedings against Scott have been brought to a close.

The conviction of Shaw has created a sensation in local Republican circles. District Attorney Jolly (Rep.) conducted the prosecution. This was the first civil case ever tried here, and great interest was taken in it. An appeal will be taken to the supreme court. Shaw is about thirty years of age and had office under Colonel Scott four years.

The Fair of the Congresses.

CHICAGO, Oct. 25. At the third and last day's session of the World's Real Estate congress in the Art Institute today the Torrens system of land transfer and registration was discussed in all its bearings in a number of highly interesting addresses, together with a presentation of the workings in the different countries in which it has been adopted. The congress is the closing one of that long series that has held forth on the Lake Front ever since the opening of the World's Fair and with the holding of a supplemental session of the National Real Estate association to morrow the World's Congress Auxiliary of the World's Columbian Exposition will come to an end.

Died of Starvation.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Oct. 25.—A terrible state of affairs was disclosed in a Field street tenement house this morning where two children have died of starvation and the father is expected to die at any time from the same cause. The family is that of Napoleon Stone, a weaver, who has been unable to obtain work. For over a week the only sustenance was a few scanty bits of bread and a little water, but since the death of the children neighbors have learned the situation and rendered assistance. It is feared that Stone is beyond aid, but his wife and one child will recover with careful nursing.

Russian Cholera Statistics.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 25.—The official cholera statistics show that from Oct. 20 to Oct. 23 there were eighty-four new cases of cholera and thirty-three deaths from that disease in this city. In Moscow, from Oct. 17 to Oct. 19, five new cases and three deaths were reported.

The following figures are given for the provinces: From Oct. 8 to Oct. 14—Volhynia, 341 new cases, 213 deaths; Lotsha, 170 new cases, 225 deaths; Tursk, 217 new cases, 46 deaths. From Sept. 21 to Oct. 14—Kieff, 222 new cases, 100 deaths.

All Silver Declined.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—There were offered for sale to the Treasury department to day 387,000 ounces of silver at prices varying from $0.7340 to $0.7375 an ounce. The whole amount was declined at the prices asked and a counter offer made of 73 cents an ounce.

COLORADO COLLEGE.

Edward Snitjer has entered Cutler academy.

The grounds in front of the new observatory are being graded.

The junior class have adopted the four-leaf clover design for the class pin. The sectors have adopted hats.

In their Book Review, MacMillan & Co. announce the speedy publication of "A History of Mathematics" by Professor Florian Cajori.

President Slocum spent last Sunday in Trinidad. Saturday evening he delivered a lecture on "Truth Seekers." Sunday morning and again in the afternoon he preached and on Sunday evening he delivered another lecture on "Higher Education."

President Slocum continues his lectures on Greek Philosophy every college day except Monday. Next Monday however he will lecture on Plato and Aristotle. The lectures are open to all and are attended by a number of people from the town. The hour is 3:20 p. m.

The Choral Union meets Tuesday evening in the chapel of Palmer Hall under the able direction of Mrs. Tucker. A number of new members have been added at each meeting and the invitation is again extended to all singers to unite with this body.

The Women's Educational Society of Colorado College have announced a suffrage meeting for Friday evening in the High School auditorium. On that occasion it is intended that the speakers will present the equal suffrage side of the question and at some later meeting the anti-suffrage side will be presented.

President Slocum will spend next Sunday in Denver. In the morning he speaks in the Congregational Church of Highlands, his subject being "The College;" in the evening he speaks in Unity Church on the subject of "Prisons," in behalf of the State Board of Charities and Corrections.

The Y. W. C. A. held a sewing bee on Saturday afternoon and made a number of garments for the sufferers in the South. The society has asked all people who are in a position to do so to send clothing to Montgomery hall, and as the barrel will be sent this week it will be necessary to attend to this matter at once.

The meeting of the College Scientific Society, held October 20, was a highly interesting one and was attended by a number of people not connected with the college. Prof. Cajori's paper on "Multiple Motors" was illustrated by drawings which were a material aid to his treatment of the subject. He also presented a paper on "The Involution of Semi-Convergant Series." The society meets monthly and is doing valuable and original work. The meetings are open to all and those interested in scientific research will find them pleasant and profitable.

AROUND THE CITY.

Latest Moves Among Politicians and Candidates.

A UTE PASS DISCOVERY.

A Mineral of Especial Value for Glass Making—A Large Factory May be Built at Colorado City—Gold Stocks Firm.

The Democrats propose to have a rousing meeting some night next week to declare the merits of their candidate. It is hoped to secure Hon. Joseph Maupin of Canon City as the speaker.

The County Central committee of the Democratic party held a meeting in this city yesterday afternoon. Mr. R. P. Davis of Cripple Creek was elected a member of the committee in place of H. B. Shepherd who failed to act. The member of the committee from the eastern part of the county has also resigned.

Governor Waite is billed to speak in this city to-morrow night for the Populists. The speaking will occur at Weber hall at 8 o'clock.

Waite, Murray, Childs and the whole gang of office holders from Denver are trying to induce the candidates on the arm and hammer ticket to withdraw, but the candidates cannot see it that way so far. They claim to have the best ticket and the only one that can win if the Populists are to succeed in this county this year.

The Clipper special edition did not appear last evening, but will be out to-night. It will support the arm and hammer ticket and repudiate the "sooners."

The straight Republican ticket, and you will know it on election day by the eagle at the top, is gaining strength every day. Earnest and efficient work is being done and the voters are realizing that it is no new experiment, but true and tried men whom they are supporting.

A NEW GLASS PLANT.

Colorado City May Yet Have Another Big Glass Manufactory.

Some time ago Otto Jensen, who was formerly superintendent at the Colorado City Glass works, made a discovery in the Ute Pass of large deposits of what is known as phonolite. This is a substance now largely used in Germany in the manufacture of glass. The most costly material used in ordinary glass manufacture is soda ash and this has to be imported from Germany. Where phonolite is used soda ash is not necessary and it will be seen that the discovery is of great importance. Mr. H. Collihran of the Midland road and A. E. Carlton of this city became interested in the matter and put up the money to secure the patents on the ground where this deposit lies. They have recently been at work getting up a company to make use of this material. About $85,000 has been so far subscribed in cash to put into the plant and to use as a working capital. Colorado City and Pueblo both want the plant and it is earnestly hoped that Colorado City will be the successful candidate. In fact it would seem like the irony of fate if El Paso county was not the first to profit by this discovery within her boundaries, but prominent subscribers to the stock are Pueblo men and they are working for her interests. Pueblo offers this advantage, that coal can be had there at about 70 cents per ton less than at Colorado City. This however is offset by the fact that the phonolite and the limerock can be put in cheaper at Colorado City.

Our nearest neighbors are alive to their interests however and have offered seven acres of land and subscribed $5,000 in money to secure the plant and it now looks as if they might succeed. It is probable that assistance will not be needed from this city but if it is our capitalists should stand ready to assist. In fact a prominent citizen has stated that he can raise more than half the money needed in a short time.

The matter is of great importance to Colorado City and to this vicinity, as the projectors state that the plant will be a large and important one and will pay out in wages about $15,000 a month. This would make it of equal importance to the Midland shops at Colorado City. The projectors have made an offer to Mr. Townsend, who began the plant at Colorado City last spring but never completed it, looking to the purchase of the land and buildings so far as completed, but have so far not received a reply.

MINES AND STOCKS.

The stockholders of Calumet are reminded of the meeting at Manitou, Saturday afternoon. The meeting will be held at 3 o'clock in W. E. Smiley's office.

The streets of Cripple Creek are declared by old timers to much resemble Leadville in the early days. The hotel lobbies are nightly scenes of great activity, and buyers and their assistants are everywhere.

There was not a great deal of activity in the gold stocks yesterday, but the depressing silver news had no bad effect on them, as many anticipated. Work was the most prominent trader and sold at 3⅛. Calumet held its own at 3¼ bid. The other quotations remain unchanged.

Two adverse suits were filed in the district court yesterday as follows: John E. Gilligan et al, vs. Jacob Greenwaldt et al, the Sandwich adversing the St. Thomas; The Chicago-Cripple Creek Gold Mining company vs. N. E. Guyot, trustee, the Zelia adversing the Fairview.

There were people foolish enough yesterday to prophesy that Mollie Gibson would drop as it did in the early days of July, simply on the news of the reported defeat of the Sherman bill. They were disappointed in a measure, however. The stock closed Tuesday evening at about $2. Yesterday it sold at $1.90 in a few instances. There was one sale at $1.85, but that was conceded to be below the market price, and it was only 100 shares. There was very little offering at those figures. In fact it seems ridiculous to even quote a stock, the capital of which is a million shares and held as Mollie is, when some frightened speculator lets go a hundred shares or more. It is not probable that anyone who has enough of the stock to make the least material difference to the management of the company would sell for any such figure.

Closing Day at the Fair.

WORLD'S FAIR GROUNDS, Oct. 25.—Fred N. Innes, leader of Innes's Thirteenth Regiment band of New York city, was appointed to-day musical director of the exercises to be held in Festival hall on the closing day of the Fair. The programme in detail was arranged, excepting as to who will deliver the invocation. President Palmer, Director-General Davis, Mrs. Potter Palmer, President Higginbotham, Commissioner Massey and James O. Crosby, Executive Commissioner for Iowa, will be the speakers.

STOP THE CALAMITY HOWLING!

The Denver morning papers have started the "calamity howl" again. They seem to have lost their reason entirely, although The Republican still has occasional glimmerings of sanity—they are hardly long enough or pronounced enough to call them lucid intervals.

These papers are now doing their worst to discredit Colorado in the eyes of the people of the rest of the world; they are trying to make it impossible for Colorado men to obtain money for the development of our splendid resources; they are in a fair way, if the people believe them, to start another panic here, and another run on the banks. Their course is unmanly and idiotic. Their predictions are not based on facts, but on the phantoms of their own heated imagination. They deserve no support or recognition from any loyal citizen of the State, whose every interest they are attacking.

Be it known to all men everywhere that the croakings of these calamity organs are not true, that they do not represent the sentiment of the people of Colorado. The prospect here is very much brighter than it was two months, or three months ago. Cripple Creek is growing fast and fortunes will be made there within a year. Real estate is growing active once more. General business is good, in fact very good indeed. Everybody here is hopeful and full of confidence. The bottom was reached in July. It did not fall out and let us drop into eternal smash then, and it is not going to fall out. It held, and we are climbing, and if Providence restrains the Democratic party a little, we shall be clear on top of the universe within two years.

The Denver papers may represent Denver, though we do not believe they do; but as for the rest of the State, and more especially for Colorado Springs, we utterly repudiate their cowardly slanders on the courage and confidence of Colorado people. There never was a better time to come to Colorado to live. There was never a better time to invest money in the Pike's Peak region. The State is going to grow and prosper, and all the wailing of the pusillanimous organs of spite and malice in Denver cannot stop it. If the Denver people have any regard for their own interests they ought to take measures to beat some sense into the newspapers that vilify and misrepresent their city. But whether they do so or not, the rest of us are going ahead. We are going to develop our resources, and do a big business, and make money, and enjoy life; and if Denver is sensible, she will go and do likewise.

ADJOURNMENT NEXT.

Judging from the remarks made by Senators Teller and Wolcott and others who have been prominent in the recent contest, they are really somewhat relieved at the prospect of an end of the struggle, and welcome the idea of a vacation. They have maintained a continuous campaign for two months, and Senator Teller, at any rate, must be nearly worn out, and really in need of a rest.

The debate has developed also a degree of heat and irritation that should be allowed time to cool off. Senators have spoken of one another in a very unbecoming and undignified way, as when Senator Morgan referred the other day to Senator Hill as one of those bubbles on the surface of politics which rise occasionally to the surface and burst with a putrescent odor.

The purpose for which the extra session was called will have been fulfilled when the repeal bill is passed. Congress has the power, of course, to go ahead as long as it pleases; but the other questions, except the McCreary bill, can wait very well till December, and it ought not to take more than a day or two for the Senate to vote on the McCreary bill. In fact, it may dispose of this while the House is engaged with the Voorhees bill.

All the probabilities, therefore, point to adjournment by the end of next week. This will not be in time for Congressmen to take part in their local campaigns, but it will give them the month of November for the rest and recuperation they so badly need, and may enable the whole country to cool down and come to the regular session in a more deliberate and judicial frame of mind than that which has prevailed for a month past.

The discussion of the suffrage question at the Republican club meeting Tuesday evening was extremely interesting, and no doubt profitable also. These meetings have been a decided success from the start. The club is in a most flourishing condition, and there is no good reason why the organization should not be kept up, and meetings held at stated intervals all through the winter. Some of the most important questions at issue between the parties have not as yet been touched upon at the club meetings, and as these questions will be up in Congress during the winter, public interest in them will be fresh. The next meeting of the club will be the last before election, and a very full attendance is expected.

The Cripple Creek Crusher has got rid of its patent inside, and will hereafter be set up entirely at home. It is now reaching out for a telegraphic report. The Crusher is greatly improved of late, and with the development of the camp is sure to become a full fledged newspaper. In everything but telegraphic reports it is now the equal of any daily in the State outside of the four largest cities. We wish for it all success.

In view of the probability of an early adjournment, the discussion in the House of Representatives on the National Bankruptcy bill is not exciting as much interest as otherwise it would. It is a most important bill, however, and before Congress meets in December it should be thoroughly discussed by the people and the press.

If "equal suffrage" is enacted, how about poll-tax and road-tax? Or will the women have to join the fire companies to obtain exemption?

A Burglar Demoralizer.

"I once invented," said a man who lived in the suburbs, "a burglar demoralizer that was very effective in its way, but I never got it patented because I didn't think I ought to. It was a very simple contrivance. It consisted merely of a stout wire stretched across the floor at such a distance from the door and windows that any one entering would get under headway before reaching it and low enough so that he would fall over it. There had been a number of burglaries in our town, and so I fitted up the lower floor of our house with the demoralizer. We adjusted the wires the last thing at night when we were locking up.

"One night, about three nights, I think it was, after we had set them up, we heard a noise at the back door, and we knew that somebody was coming. We gathered around the head of the back stairs and listened. The burglar got in without much trouble and closed the door softly behind him, and then for a moment everything was very still. Then there was a great thud that fairly shook the house, then another moment of stillness, and then the suppressed but steady sound of a human voice. It was the burglar sitting on the kitchen floor and cursing.

"After awhile we moved around a little upstairs to let him know we were on deck, and he got up and went away. He didn't take anything, but Mrs. Suburb said she had rather he had taken everything there was in the house than to hear him swear so, and that is why I never got the demoralizer patented. It was effective, but it would have seemed like offering a premium on profanity."—New York Sun.

And He Didn't Know It.

Ferguson was wending his uncertain way homeward, sorely troubled in his mind over the curtain lecture he knew was in store for him and casting about for some means of evading it. Suddenly a bright idea was evolved from his befuddled brain. He would slip into the house and get quietly into bed without awakening his wife. Accordingly he stole gently up stairs, carefully undressed outside the door and crept into bed with his face toward the outside. He mentally congratulated himself upon his success thus far and went to sleep.

When he awoke in the morning, he dared not look at his wife, and after lying still for a few minutes and not hearing any noise from her he concluded she was still asleep. He then determined to arise very quietly, carry his clothes outside the door, dress there and go down town to business without waiting for breakfast. He was successful in this, and meeting the servant girl down stairs he said:

"Eliza, you can tell your mistress I expect to be very busy today, and therefore I didn't stop to have breakfast with her this morning."

"Laws, sir," said Eliza, "she's went away yesterday morning to her mother's and said she wouldn't be back till this evening."—London Tit-Bits.

The Son's Turn.

The story is told of an eminent divine and his bright boy that is not devoid of instructiveness. The father had a way of saying to his son when leaving home:

"Remember whose boy you are."

The lad one day turned the tables by calling out to his father:

"Goodby, pops. Remember whose father you are."—Detroit Tit-Bits.

AT THE RISK OF LIFE

RECENT MEMORABLE AND REMARKABLE F[illegible]S IN THE SENATE.

Senator Allen's Almost Incredible Power of Endurance—A Dramatic Exhibition of Passion and Earnestness—Lives That Hung in the Balance.

[Special Correspondence.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—No one would have been surprised if the great silver fight had killed a number of Senators. The strain, both physical and mental, was tremendous and long continued. Not only the night sessions running after the day sessions, but the whole progress of the fight for two or three weeks has been full of pressure and of demands upon the strength of those most actively concerned. Then came on the long, tedious siftings and the effort of certain senators friendly to the silver side to consummate by speeches of unexampled length.

There was Mr. Allen of Nebraska, who accomplished the remarkable feat of talking for 14 hours. During 12 of these hours he was upon his feet addressing the Senate. The remaining two hours were consumed by the remarks of other senators or by roll calls in the effort to secure a quorum. During the whole 14 hours Mr. Allen never left his seat or retired from the Senate chamber even for a moment. How he was able to do this passed the comprehension of even the most experienced senators and observers.

A Terrible Ordeal.

Mr. Allen is an athletic built man, tall, straight and sinewy. He has a clean shaven and clean cut face, the paw of courage and persistency, and physical endurance high above the average. The remarkable thing about his speech was that his voice appeared to improve in clearness and quality the longer he talked. During the ordeal he drank nothing but coffee and not much of that, only pausing occasionally to take a sip. Mr. Allen closed his remarkable speech apparently stronger than when he started. But it was only in appearance. The excitement of the occasion, the frequent interruptions of senators, the consciousness that he was making a remarkable record, his earnestness in the cause in which he was engaged, all tended to buoy up his spirits and to remove his thought from his physical or mental fatigue.

Then came the reaction. For 24 hours Mr. Allen did not make his appearance in the senate chamber, and I hear his friends and family were at first exceedingly anxious over his condition. When he left the senate, he found it impossible for a long time to get to sleep, and finally opiates had to be administered to him in order to induce restful slumber. The man's magnificent physique and great vitality gave him numerous recuperative powers, and in 24 hours he was back in his seat, pale and nervous, but still ready for battle.

Many senators overestimated their strength in this memorable struggle. They believed they could endure more than was found possible when the test came. A number of senators who stood up two nights in succession in the oppressive atmosphere of the senate chamber or cloakrooms, with but an occasional half hour's nap on a sofa, have been dangerously near an illness ever since. Among those who made the mistake of overestimating their strength was Senator Stewart of Nevada. For several weeks Mr. Stewart had been boasting as to what he would do when the climax came in.

At one time he offered to make a speech 30 days long. At another time he proposed to hold the senate every alternate night, alone and single handed. Later he reduced the estimate length of his address to four days, and finally to 20 hours, but when he came to apply his theories and boasts to actual practice six or eight hours was as long as he felt able to hold the floor. He could not have held it this long had it not been for frequent interruptions for roll calls or the interjection of remarks by other senators.

At one time Senator Stewart begged the presiding officer to maintain better order in the chamber, saying that he was much interested in his own remarks and wished to have the pleasure of hearing what he himself had to say. Senator Stewart is a remarkable old man, full of energy and vitality, but he has learned the lesson which many other elderly senators also learned during this ordeal—that years will tell even upon the strongest physiques.

The Impress of Conviction.

The leader about whom most anxiety was felt by his friends during the trying days and nights of the silver battle was Mr. Teller of Colorado. Upon Mr. Teller's shoulders has fallen the brunt of the battle waged by the silver people. He has been their leader in council and in battle. He has been in his seat almost every hour since the struggle began. The strain upon his nervous system and his will power has been as great as that upon his physical constitution. Moreover, Mr. Teller has been the most earnest and passionate of all the participants in this great legislative combat. His heart, his mind, his body, all his powers and instincts have been concentrated upon the one idea of preventing unconditional repeal of the Sherman act and the striking down of silver as money.

As is usually the case with men who devote themselves to one idea throughout a long series of years, Mr. Teller has become not cranky, not abnormal, but dangerously near thereto in the extreme of his devotion and earnestness. Several times during the progress of the fight he made speeches in which it was evident he controlled his feelings only with the greatest difficulty. The tears freely came to his eyes, and his frame shook with emotion.

On one of these occasions, during the hand to hand fighting, Mr. Teller made one of the most passionate speeches ever heard in the senate chamber. He declared that he would fight this bill to the bitter end, and that in so doing he was supported by his conscience and by the people of the country. He went so far as to declare that he believed it is duty not only to speak and to vote against the measure, but, to the extent of his ability, to oppose it with every filibustering movement that was possible under the rules of the senate.

He became so excited that all the blood in his body was drawn to his head, and the skin of his face and neck became suffused. Every nerve was a tingle with excitement, and while his voice rang out throughout the chamber with all the pathos and passion of a man pleading before a court for his own life senators on the floor and the crowds in the galleries watched him with an intentness which was almost pathetic. They could see that he was in danger of working himself, to that pitch in which an apoplectic fit might overtake him. In all the years that I have been watching the proceedings of the house of representatives and the United States senate I have never seen a more dramatic exhibition of passion and eloquence than this.

Senatorial Principle.

Every one in the senate chamber was glad when Mr. Teller sat down and began wiping his blood red face with his handkerchief. It was the close of a most exciting incident which any one could see might have ended in a serious danger to the life of the principal actor. No man in the senate chamber enjoys to a greater degree the respect and confidence of his associates than Mr. Teller. It is a feature of the bitterness of the silver struggle that Senator Gorman and other Democratic leaders have found it virtually impossible to "put the screws" on the silver side because Mr. Teller and other silver Republicans had helped them through just such an emergency when the force bill was under consideration.

It was Mr. Voorhees who paid Mr. Teller a warm compliment by remarking by explanation of the absence from the senate of a large number of repealers that an agreement had been entered into to the effect that for a certain number of days no vote should be taken. "And," added Mr. Voorhees, "an agreement with the Senator from Colorado is as strong and enduring as the laws of the Medes and Persians." In this way public attention was called to a fact which had been known to some senators and many newspaper representatives that throughout four or five days the silver forces were in the majority in the senate chamber and could, had they been so disposed, have taken advantage of the absence of a certain side to side track the bill or indefinitely postpone it. But they had entered into an agreement that a truce should prevail, and no one ever had a thought of breaking the contract.

Life in Jeopardy.

Senator Voorhees, the leader of the administration and repeal forces, took his life into his hands when he went into this contest. For a number of years he has not been in good health, and the strain of this long and bitter struggle, it was feared by his friends, would cause a relapse that might prove serious. Mr. Voorhees is afflicted with a combination of rheumatism and gout from which he sometimes greatly suffers.

On Friday of last week Mr. Voorhees was in his seat all day, though he was enduring the tortures of the damned. The nerves and muscles of his limbs told him in the vivid words of acute suffering that a storm was approaching the Capital City, and he did not need to see the bulletin of the meteorological bureau posted in the senate lobby to know that a West Indian cyclone was howling northward in a direct line for Washington. When the storm broke in all its fury, Mr. Voorhees was delighted, for it is a remarkable feature of his suffering that it always indicates the coming of meteorological disturbances, but when they have arrived the pain ceases. Mr. Voorhees was telling me of this peculiarity of his ailment, and when I asked him how he explained it on physiological grounds, he said: "I don't explain it. I only know that it is a damnable fact."

It is the verdict of all senators, both those who were with Mr. Voorhees in the fight and those who were against him, that he bore himself with fairness and dignity and with great respect for the feelings and rights of the other side. He was all the time in a delicate and embarrassing position, and it is a remarkable fact that for several days after the close of the contest of physical endurance the senate remained in session hour after hour solely for the purpose of vindicating Mr. Voorhees before the country. The respect which his fellow senators entertain for him led them to make sacrifices of comfort and strength in this labor of love.

A Master in Finance.

The greatest speech made on the silver question was without doubt that of Senator Jones of Nevada. Mr. Jones is the greatest master of currency questions in this country, unless it be that John Sherman is his equal. If Mr. Sherman were in the prime of life, or were he even as young as Mr. Jones, a debate between them on currency questions would be intensely interesting. Mr. Jones's speech came, at the close of a week of long sessions, when every one was worn out, and the fact that nearly every senator remained for hours in his seat listening to the Nevada oracle was, under the circumstances, the highest compliment ever paid an orator in the senate chamber. Mr. Jones is not only a master of finance, but a master of the English language. He speaks with wonderful clearness both of voice and words, and accomplished a feat which had hitherto been supposed almost impossible—that of holding an audience "spellbound" with a disquisition upon the currency.

Venerable, but Enduring.

The most remarkable instance of physical endurance during the long sessions of the senate was that displayed by Mr. Palmer of Illinois. Though past 80 years of age, Senator Palmer was always in his seat and did not miss more than two or three of the scores of roll calls which were ordered for the purpose of securing the presence of a quorum. He was not only almost constantly in his seat, but while others were dozing and snoring he was wide awake, watchful and alert.

The senate chamber at this time looked like a pit in which a cocking main had been held. The floor was covered with papers, the air was filled with dust, and the atmosphere which senators were compelled to breathe was heavy and poisonous. But all this made no difference to the wonderful old man from the prairies of Illinois. He "sat it out" with the youngest and strongest of them, and at the close of the contest seemed more able to go on than many of the younger men.

His endurance was a surprise to all beholders, for it had been expected on account of his advanced age that he would be among the first to succumb. Probably if he had endeavored to make a long speech, thus overtaxing his powers, he would have fallen by the wayside, but he had the good sense to confine his remarks to a few minutes at a time and was thus able to endure the strain.

It is to be hoped that it will be many years before the senate of the United States again experiences such a degradation from the intellectual to the brute plane.

ROBERT HAYES.

Alaska Indians' Queer Taste.

The Indians in the far interior of Alaska, shut off from the outside world by towering miles of snow buried mountains and monster icefields, have to depend entirely upon local products for their food. They keep no live stock at all, nor do they till the soil, but nature furnishes them with a generous supply of provisions.

From July to November all the streams and lakes are stocked with an abundance of delicious salmon.

After the long and bitter winter, with the thermometer often at 60 degrees below zero, the natives are gaunt and haggard, but in the early spring their lean and wrinkled bodies begin at once to assume rounder shapes as soon as they can ply their gaff hooks and land the fatted salmon safely on shore. At this season all day long the squaws are kept busily employed boiling fish in big cooking pots over log fires. As soon as the meal is cooked it is tilted out into a shallow wooden dish, to be very soon consumed by a hungry group of Indians armed with big horn spoons.

As the summer advances, and fish become more plentiful, the native seeks variety in the bill of fare and supplies his gastronomic taste by curious methods. I have frequently watched a native harpoon a salmon, and then having bitten a mouthful from the gristly part of its head fling the fish, mutilated but alive, back into the stream. In utter contrast to this strange taste, decomposed salmon heads are deemed a natural delicacy. In order to impart to them the desired flavor, they are kept for [illegible] weeks in wooden troughs, and [illegible] higher [illegible] than [illegible] usually [illegible] in Colorado.

FLYING COLORS

HILL'S OPPORTUNITY TO DISTINGUISH HIMSELF.

A New York Senator and His Labor for the Repeal Cause—Senator Harp Tongues—The President's Sorely Tried.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 21.—[Special.]—David New York is coming out of the fight with flying colors. When he began, there was much curiosity as to how Mr. Hill would deal with the great question. It was well known that he was not at all in accord with the President on this question, but it was also well known that he was a man who could not be dictated to by Mr. Cleveland, or dictate his course in the senate chamber. The success of his efforts have all been disappointed, even to many of the Cleveland people who have then in charge, but yet on the indications are that the states of New York will take a different view and moderate his scientific zeal. At any rate, he has laboured long and possibly hard in the cause, and in the end perhaps it will be thought that he has done all that could be done under the circumstances.

City Politics.

All the candidates are out, and politics has already reached the stage where Tammany and its anti-Tammany opponents begin to "point with pride" or "view with alarm" "repudiate with scorn" and do all those other things common at this season. And if one wants to realize how very cosmopolitan New York city is let him read the personnel of the tickets. Thus Charles H. Murray, Republican candidate for district attorney of this county, was born in San Francisco in 1855; Henry C. Robinson, their candidate for comptroller, was born in Wyoming Valley, Pennsylvania, in 1857, and so on. On the Democratic ticket are such names as Sullivan, Mitchell, Roche, Dinkelspiel, Petry, Sulzer, etc., which names speak for the inclusive nationality. The old story is applicable of the Englishman who said he supposed the gentleman was an American from New York, by his name. Old Salary.

Interest in the cases of Cornelius Harris and Dr. Buchanan was revived by the proposition to make Francis J. Wellman the Democratic candidate for district attorney. As a matter connected with official, he conducted those cases to a conclusion, and it is charged that when he gets a contrary conviction it is certain unless the defense is absolutely impregnable. Tammany brought him up by hand, as it were, for in Youth he was among the poorest. Nevertheless Tammany thought it best to name Colonel John H. Fellows for that office, which he held before Dudley Nicoll, present incumbent. Western and out of town readers generally may think it odd that Hon. Abbot E. Fitch should be willing to surrender his seat in congress and become city comptroller, but to a real New Yorker Washington city is never in it with Gotham.

Low Prices.

Of course everybody knows that wheat has recently touched the lowest price recorded since the records of the Van Rensselaer manor began—some 50 years before the Revolution—and that Wall street is possibly a little more lively than the average Sunday school convention. The highest price wheat ever reached in this city was in 1866, when flour was $16 per barrel, and the next highest in 1854 was early in 1855, when wheat was $2.50. In 1817 flour was $14 per barrel, and in 1817 it once reached $19. India, Australia and Argentina each export more wheat now than the United States did in any year before the war, and Canada is not far behind. Furthermore, the "bears" claim to have private information that the surplus of two large crops in India has been dried and stored in those rock bins used by the Incas, but these "bears" are a pulling down set.

The Produce Market.

In view of the foregoing facts, Wall street and all who are interested in the general produce market since Saturday are very the announcement that a convention of the grain growers of the west is to be held at Crookston, Minn., tomorrow. The call for that convention declares the object thereof to be "to devise ways and means for reducing transportation charges on grain, and to compel railroads, millers and dealers to do business on a basis of legitimate profit, based on the same average profit on actual capital invested in railroads, elevators and mills as the average net profit on capital invested in farm profit."

"As the net profit on farm values," says an old broker, "is nothing at present and the net profit on hauling grain is the same, the job would seem to be easy to that extent, but if the farmers can insure equality of profits they will reverse the experience of the world."

Trials of an Orator.

The orator at a family gathering recently passed through some trying experiences. First the platform broke down under him and after this was righted he was attacked by a hornet. At this point he turned to the chairman, with a pained expression, which that gentleman misinterpreted, and thinking he had duly forgotten his opening lines smiled on him encouragingly. But when the opening remarks came as a shock and a gesture quite out of the common course the audience, too, got excited and went to the gentleman's assistance. The sting attended to, the oration was resumed.

THE NEWS OF GOTHAM

CRIME, POLITICS, CHEAP WHEAT AND STAGNANT WALL STREET.

Are We to Be Substituted for Our Methods of Dealing With Criminals—Two Aspects of Redfoot Politics—Wheat at the Lowest Recorded Price.

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—[Special.]—The Sun, New England and other journals of equity and experience have recently [illegible] in an attempt to organize a general crusade which will land some of our [illegible] by [illegible] conferences to take up the subject. The subject of this discussion may be thus stated: Are the existing methods of dealing with crime and poverty radically wrong in principle, and shall we manage on a thoroughly scientific system? Is it true [illegible] so? And the man to whom, more than to any other, or perhaps more than to the dozens of others, is Professor Cesare Lombroso of the University of Turin, who now plays hide and seek in London, is the man who first put this question in a form which compels us to think. Here in America we were willing to make short work of the matter. Here in [illegible] to revolve the light in the line as completely as Darwin revolutionized biology.

Popular interest in the subject has been brought home by the discussion upon the methods pursued by Superintendent W. Z. Brockway of the Elmira Reformatory, who professes to have peopled his system entirely upon Lombroso's theories, and when a prominent daily of this city has charged with cruelty [illegible] brutal divide criminals into three classes, those born to be criminals and utterly incapable of anything else, those with a criminal tendency who [illegible] and those naturally inclined to do right but betrayed into crime by [illegible] other passions. The first class [illegible] treat with extreme severity, the last with great leniency, and the second [illegible] subject to an indeterminate sentence [illegible] satisfactory proof is furnished that the tendency is wicked out.

He claims that these long examinations with criminal [illegible] are [illegible] able evidence of [illegible] of skull, etc., and that all such should be taken charge of in [illegible] of their first offence. The [illegible] them as well as to society [illegible] than. In short, it would [illegible] them treated as the [illegible] Mr. Brockway [illegible] the right to dictate to society [illegible] the morbidity at the discretion of those who have them in charge, but yet on the indications are that the states of New York will take a different view and moderate his scientific zeal. At any rate, he has laboured long and possibly hard in the cause, and in the end perhaps it will be thought that he has done all that could be done under the circumstances.

To READ is well!

To ACT is better!

TO KNOW what is worn and what money can buy, it is necessary to keep informed. The age moves rapidly, and each year witnesses great changes in the variety of styles, cloths, trimmings, etc., of clothing. The newest and best in cloth and the latest in style cost no more, and may cost less, than what is inferior in fabric and workmanship, and out of date in style.

It is our business to keep posted. We KEEP POSTED. We are ever on the watch for what is new and desirable. We supply our customers with the best of what is going. Our purchases of fresh, new, high-priced goods during the past few months have been larger than those of any tailoring house in this city. Our assortment of Fall styles is indeed a superb one.

Our work is all done ON THE SPOT by first class workmen. We guarantee satisfaction. Try us once, and you will keep with us year after year.

YOUR LAST CHANCE.

The World's Fair will close October 31st. Never in the world's history has there been anything approaching it in magnificence, extensiveness of its grounds and buildings, or in the character of the varied exhibits and displays from almost every nation on the globe.

Railroad fares to Chicago are down to within a fraction of half-rate for the round trip. Therefore, stand not upon the order of going, but go at once to the nearest railroad agent and secure your tickets over the popular Burlington Route, whose fast "World's Fair Flyers," leaving Denver daily at 8:25 a. m. and 10:30 p. m. afford to all the quickest and best means of reaching Chicago.

He has been in Colorado Springs for some weeks past.

The arrangements for the fair which the ladies of the First Presbyterian Church will hold during the first week in December, are progressing rapidly. A number of novelties may be expected in connection with the fair. One of the latest which has been decided on is a burlesque or imitation Columbian Exposition, including, among other features, the Midway Plaisance, with its marvelous mixtures of heathen music and other things.

Mr. J. C. McCoy, one of the trustees of the town of Cripple Creek, was in the city last evening. From him it is learned that the water has been turned into the pipes of the new water works system at camp. It is being taken directly from Beaver creek and the reservoir will not be used until next summer. The people at the camp have reason to rejoice over this for it undoubtedly marks a new era of prosperity for the town. Much building can now be anticipated. Property-holders have had to pay 10 per cent insurance but as soon as the water system is in good running order the rates will be reduced.

Manager Nye received a telegram yesterday from Mr. Clarence Fleming, manager for the well known English actress, Rosina Vokes, saying that Miss Vokes and her company would leave California for the East next Sunday, stopping at Colorado Springs and Denver. "Alvin Joslin."

That admirable comedian, Chas. L. Davis, who has a large circle of friends in this city, will appear in his bright and perennially popular down east comedy, "Alvin Johnson," at the Opera House Monday evening. The piece is beautifully and elaborately staged, and every realistic detail receives the most scrupulous attention. The Chicago Globe says: "'Alvin Joslin' is one continuous laugh. Mr. Davis as old Uncle Alvin is excruciatingly comical, while his portraiture of the New England farmer deserves to rank high in the extensive gallery of American stage creations. The star is supported by a carefully selected company, and every role is in the hands of a thoroughly competent artist, the result being a very evenly balanced and enjoyable all-round performance."

The prospectus of the Winter Night College for the coming season has been issued in a handsome leaflet, printed by The Gazette Printing company.
